Theory of Smokeless Powder.

Cape Town, Saturday, Feb. 3.—One competent military observer's defluctions, from our assault on the Boer position is that with modern magazine rifles using smokeless powder, the defense is ten to one as compared with the attack, while formerly the rule was three to one. The results at Mafeking and Kimberley are evidence of this principle, equally with British experience at Magersfontein.

A wonderful change is taking place in the army. The British are grasping the new conditions of warfare. Our scouts, mounted infantry, Remington guides, Little's corps of Australians and New Zealanders, are quite able now to cope with the Boers. Our infantry, when moving into action now instinctively seek cover. The depression caused in England by the British reverses has not reached the campa where the men are truly anxious to meet the enemy. Theory of Smokeless Powder.
